

Whom and Whose

Whom

WHOM is an object pronoun.

Example; him, her, us...

It should be used to refer to the object of a verb or preposition.

We use WHOM to ask person receives an action.

Examples

- This is my brother , whom you met at our house last month.
- Do you know someone whom I can talk about global warming.
- The woman whom I saw at the cinema last week is a dentist.
- This is my student whom I like a lot.
- The children, most of whom are clever, succeeded in the exam.
- Whom will you send for?
- Samuel is the man whom I played football with last week.

Whose

WHOSE is a pronoun.

It is used in questions to ask who owns something.

It is a possessive pronoun.

Example; her, his, our and etc...

Examples

- Whose gloves are these?
- Whose notebook was stolen in the class?
- This is Mary, whose mother went to university with me.
- Alex whose mother is an Math teacher lives in London.
- Can you fix the car whose engine problem?
- The man whose daughter wants to be a doctor is a friend of mine.
- Whose wallet is this?
- Whose car is parking outside?